

Vegan Friendly Restaurants in Scotland

Updated 18 April 2017

This is a list of some vegan and vegan-friendly restaurants in Edinburgh and Glasgow. This is not a comprehensive list; it's just to help you as you get started. It is also not possible for this list to be fully up to date as vegan provision is expanding daily, and rapidly. We also can't take any responsibility for the food, so if in any doubt do check that what you're ordering is vegan. We are also not endorsing or reviewing these venues. This is purely a list of places that cater to vegans to variable degrees, to help vegans when eating out in central Scotland.

For venues not on this list, always start by asking for their vegan menu. Some venues have a secret vegan menu (one they don't publicise at all) and more and more are popping up all the time so they may well have one even if not on this list. Do send us a pic of their menu if you find a new one, so that we can share it and add the venue to this list. Alternatively, a lot of venues have vegan options clearly marked on their standard menu.

If the venue doesn't have a vegan menu or options marked clearly on their standard menu, they should be able to tell you what they can make vegan. Some people find it daunting to have these discussions, but they get easier the more you do it. Remember every conversation like this increases awareness, demonstrates the demand and in some cases can even spark interest in veganism. If you have a good experience you could leave them one of our "Thank You For Having Vegan Options" restaurant cards (available on our website), which say thank you but also remind them that veganism is not a fad diet, but instead a matter of justice for animals.

Remember the App Happy Cow is an excellent tool for searching for vegan options at home as well as when travelling. If we all update it and submit reviews when we eat out we'll improve the information available for people who are newly vegan and living here and for people visiting. A useful site for vegan options at chain restaurants is vemand.com.

Please note that for non-vegan venues (particularly take away venues) we would consider an otherwise vegan dish cooked in the same (vegetable) oil as non-vegan items to be vegan. Some vegans avoid products cooked in the same oil as non-vegan products and you would need to check this with the venue. Of course, if the item is cooked in animal fat we would not consider that vegan (as ordering that item is creating demand for that animal fat) and many chip shops and restaurants do cook their chips in animal fat, so again this is something you should check with each venue.

For more information go to fGo Vegan Scotland and goveganscotland.com (also on Twitter and Instagram with the handle @goveganscotland).
